President's Column

Dan Lass

The 2005 meetings in Annapolis are just around the corner! The meetings begin Sunday June 12 with our traditional reception and continue through Tuesday June 14. The Annual Meetings Registration Form is attached at the end of this Newsletter. The Registration Deadline is May 13, so send your registration today!

The meetings will be held at the Loews Annapolis Hotel in Annapolis, Maryland. Annapolis, Maryland's state capital, is a small, charming city that was founded in 1649 and served as the nation's capital from 1783-1784. Located on the Chesapeake Bay, Annapolis is most known as being home to the U.S. Naval Academy. It is also home to St. John's College, founded in 1696 and still known today for its Great Books curriculum. The historic district, where the hotel is located, boasts many interesting sites, including the State House, which is where the Treaty of Paris was signed at the end of the Revolutionary War. Hotel information is attached as well – for registrations, please call the Loews Annapolis Hotel directly at 1-800-526-2593. Be sure you tell them you are with NAREA.

The 2005 NAREA Workshop on Invasive Species begins immediately after the NAREA Annual Meetings end and continues to 1:00 PM on Wednesday, June 15. Lori Lynch and Erik Lichtenberg chaired the committee and put together a program featuring top national and international researchers. I hope you'll take advantage of this great opportunity and stay the additional day in Annapolis. More information on the program is attached at the end of this newsletter and is available on NAREA's website (<http://narea.org/>).

The NAREA Executive Committee made several decisions this year to strengthen the financial situation of our Journal, the ARER. One of those decisions was to boost our library subscription rate to a competitive level. We're happy to report that this had no apparent effect on library memberships. Our Secretary/Treasurer reports that library subscriptions remained the same. We have also tried a few things to boost our general membership. These activities have not been as successful, as yet. But, we'll wait until after the Annual Meeting to evaluate. We typically get a number of members renewing during the Annual Meetings. We also acted to raise page charges this year to a level that will allow us to cover our publishing costs. Our current page charge of $75 per page leaves the ARER competitive with, or lower than, our cohort journals.

Wes Musser and Lori Lynch, our new editors, report that we're off to a great start in 2005. With this encouraging start, Wes and Lori remain optimistic about expanding the ARER to three issues per year. This would benefit members and other authors by improving the turn-around between submission and publication. We will not move to three issues until we are confident we can consistently fill all three issues. The spring Workshop Issue helps, but we also need more submission. What do you have in the development stage that would be appropriate for ARER?

After the success of last summer's joint meeting with the Canadian Society, we've begun to discuss another joint meeting of CAES and NAREA for 2008. This would coincide with the 350th Anniversary of the City of Quebec ensuring quite a celebration. We will keep you posted on developments for this great opportunity.

We look forward to a prosperous coming year. By strengthening our financial position, NAREA will be able to be more aggressive in the coming years in improving and promoting the excellence of the ARER and the quality of our Annual Meeting and Workshops. My thanks to our Executive Board, and to our members who volunteer on NAREA committees.

2006 NAREA Annual Meeting

Hold the date! The 2006 NAREA Annual Meetings will be held at the Hilton Hotel in Mystic, Connecticut. (Those of you who attended the 1993 NAREA meetings in Mystic will remember the venue.) The meetings will be held from June 11-13 (Sunday-Tuesday), with the post-conference workshop from June 13-14 (Tuesday-Wednesday). A block of rooms has been reserved at the rate of $129.00 per night. Mystic is a popular summer tourist destination, and is easily accessible by train, air, or highway. It offers attractions including Mystic Seaport (1 mile from the conference hotel) and the Mystic Aquarium and Institute for Exploration (a very short walk from the hotel). Two major casinos are within a short drive (Foxwoods and Mohegan Sun). Additional details will follow as we approach June 2006. For additional information contact Robert J. Johnston at the University of Connecticut (860-405-9278; robert.johnston@uconn.edu).

2006 NAREA Workshop

The topic for the 2006 NAREA Workshop will be community economic development. Todd Gabe and Stephan Goetz have agreed to organize the 2006 NAREA Workshop and are working on funding the workshop. If you are interested in participating on the 2006 NAREA Workshop committee, please contact Todd Gabe (Todd_Gabe@umit.maine.edu), Stephan Goetz (sgoetz@psu.edu) or Dan Lass (dan.lass@resecon.umass.edu).

ARER Editor's Report

Lori Lynch and Wes Musser

Camera-ready page proofs of the April 2005 issue have been mailed to Sheridan Press, and the journal should be mailed to members and subscribers shortly. This issue has papers from the 2004 Trade and Environment Workshop in Nova Scotia. One invited paper and seven contributed papers are included. One of the 10 submitted papers from the workshop was withdrawn from consideration and two were rejected. Two book reviews are also included.

The October 2005 issue is off to an excellent start. Five articles have been accepted, and camera-ready versions of manuscripts are complete or are being prepared. The October 2005 issue can be expected to contain ten or more submitted articles, one invited paper from the 2005 Meeting, abstracts of presented papers, and articles associated with NAREA awards.

During 2004, 37 new articles were submitted to ARER. Of these, twelve (about 32 percent) have been accepted (two for the October 2004 issue, seven for the April 2005 issue, and three for the October 2005 issue), four (about 11 percent) were sent back to the authors because the manuscript was inappropriate for the ARER, eight were rejected (about 22 percent), and eleven are in the revise-resubmit or review-not-yet-complete category (about 29 percent). Two (about five percent) were withdrawn from consideration during the revise and resubmit stage. In addition, two articles accepted by Peter Parks, the previous editor, were forwarded to us for publication in 2005.

So far in 2005, twelve new articles have been submitted to ARER. Of the twelve new articles, five (41 percent) are in the revise and resubmit phase, and seven (58 percent) are still in the first round of review. We again plan to have the Invasive Species Workshop presenters submit their manuscripts for a special issue in April 2006.

We want to thank all the reviewers and editorial board members who have helped to review the manuscripts. It is only through the generous use of your time that the publication process is made possible.

We are enjoying working with the members in continuing the excellent tradition of ARER. In addition to reviewing manuscripts, we invite and encourage members to submit their manuscripts to ARER. The numbers reported above indicate your support as we now have as many submissions in 2005 as we did at this time in 2004. However, the journal can use additional manuscripts. Submitting more quality manuscripts will continue enhancing our journal.

The Executive Committee has been discussing going from two to three issues per year. The extra issue would shorten the lag time between acceptance and publication. To have this extra issue, we need more publishable manuscripts. We hope that you send us more manuscripts and encourage friends and colleagues from around the region, country, and world to also send us their work.

2005 NAREA Award for Outstanding Public Service Through Economics

We are delighted to announce that the 2005 Award for Outstanding Public Service Through Economics goes to Professor Sandra Batie of Michigan State University. Sandra joined the MSU faculty in 1993 as the first holder of the Elton R. Smith Professorship in Food and Agricultural Policy. Prior to joining MSU, Sandra was a member of the Virginia Tech faculty. Sandra has made tremendous contributions through her research and outreach on natural resource economics, environmental economics and public policy. We are all familiar with Sandra's contributions to our profession through her writings. Her research has been applied to a diverse range of problems from our local communities to the international arena. She is currently Director at the International Rice Research Institute and Trustee at Winrock International. She has been a Fellow at the National Governors' Association and The Conservation Foundation. We are also familiar with Sandra's contributions to our profession through her continuous involvement on committees and as an executive. Sandra has been president of both the Southern Agricultural Economics Association and the American Agricultural Economics Association and is a Fellow of the AAEA. Sandra will speak at the NAREA Awards Luncheon at the Annual Meetings on Monday, June 13. I hope you'll all join me at the luncheon in celebrating Sandra's outstanding career.
